

Photo Contest on Urban Health & the Environment: What does the link between urban design and public well-being look like?

Image Source: Flickr, Paul Reynolds

Image Source: Flickr, Linh Nguyen

Image Source: Flickr, Infobitat

The Penn Institute for Urban Research, in collaboration with Center for Public Health Initiatives, invites you to participate in a photo contest on the theme of public health and the urban environmental landscape. In particular, we are interested in images that emphasize ways that urban design has succeeded or failed to promote public health and well-being.

Submissions accepted January 11- February 21
Prizes: 1st place = $200 Runners up = $50 each

For more information visit www.penniur.upenn.edu

To enter: Tweet your image to Penn IUR (@PennIUR), include a short description of the photo, as well as location that the photo was taken, and tag your photo with #GreenHealth2016

- The contest is open to both students and the public
- Submissions will be judged by a panel of public health and urban design experts

Winners will be announced on February 25 at the "Shaping Urban Health & Environmental Landscape" symposium in the Fisher Fine Arts Library, Kleinman Forum from 3 - 6pm. Register online at www.penniur.upenn.edu/events